Thanksgiving Church Services Here— This Year 150th Anniversary

Union service in Baptist Church—Episcopal service also planned—Some history of the holiday—Addison will observe day in Jeffersonian manner.

This year marks the 150th anniversary of Thanksgiving Day as legally established in the United States. However, it is not the birthday of that holiday, as people were observing it as far back as 1734.

This holiday is peculiar to the United States alone but is observed by Americans in foreign lands.

Elias Boudinot introduced a resolution in Congress setting aside a national holiday for Thanksgiving and Roger Sherman seconded the resolution. The first Thanksgiving Day was established by law as November 26, 1789. President George Washington issued the first proclamation on October 3, 1789. Hamilton had first broached the idea at a cabinet meeting.

There was a difference of opinion as to how it should be observed. Alexander Hamilton was for a noisy celebration and parade and Thomas Jefferson was for a simple home observance and church going.

Hamilton's supporters took over the famous Fraunce's Tavern, which is still in existence, and there held a riotous party in which many blows were struck when the celebrators became too tipsy. Hamilton appeared at the party and later went to the home of President Washington. News of the fight had traveled ahead of him and Washington reprimanded Hamilton and as a result Washington did not issue another Thanksgiving proclamation until January 1, 1795.

Addison will observe Thanksgiving more in the Jeffersonian style.

There will be two church services Thanksgiving morning. A union service of Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist congregations will be held in the Baptist Church at 10 o'clock. The preacher will be the host pastor, the Rev. Mondula C. Johns. He will be assisted by the Rev. John V. Axtell of the Presbyterian Church and the Rev. Nicholas Van Cossaboon of the Methodist Church.

A morning service of Thanksgiving will also be held in the Episcopal Church at 10 o'clock under the direction of the Rev. Russell O. Kirsch, vicar.

Most local people will remain at home for their Thanksgiving dinner which will range from steaks to turkey with fowl having the chief call for the day.

Some will visit relatives in other communities and some will take trips, making use of the holiday week-end period. Many will take advantage of the afternoon to listen to football games on the radio or sleep or visit.

Americans are being reminded by radio, press and pulp of the many things to be thankful for this year and the prayers of thanksgiving on Thursday will be a little more sincere and a little more complete than in past years when Americans have not fully realized the benefits they do enjoy.

Much of the land hereabout is posted, but many farmers and owners have and will give permission to hunters if asked. Some illegal takes of deer have been reported and in addition several have been killed on the highways.

Consideration of the rights of farmers is asked of hunters with cooperation there can be good hunting on good lands each year, but should hunters violate the rights of farmers, an unfavorable reaction may prevent good hunting on good lands in future years.

Permission to hunt, care of stock and fences and like considerations are asked of hunters by conservation officials and farmers.

Robbins Shares in Ithaca Victory Over Brooklyn

Ithaca, N. Y. — Member of the Ithaca College varsity football team that defeated Brooklyn College 13-6 in the final game of the season here was Maurice Robbins of Addison.

By winning over the strong Brooklyn eleven, conqueror of C. O. N. Y. the Ithacans closed the year with a 500 percentage in games won and lost. Hofstra College of Hempstead, L. I., took the Bombers' measure 14-6 in the fifth contest of the season.

The Ithacans were handicapped in their mid-season game by injuries to several of their best players, and their understudies lacked the experience necessary to play winning football against the stronger opponents.

Robbins is a junior in the department of physical education.

Sexauer Suggests Planning to Aid Producers in Talk Here

Dairymen's League President suggests knowledge as key to milk production success — District meeting in Addison for two days — Vice President Rathbun also speaker in high school.

Problems of management from the point of view of the directors and from the membership were discussed at a two-day session of the Dairymen's League of Steuben and Tioga counties held in Addison Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

The opening session was held Tuesday morning in the village hall for delegates and associate delegates. Director Herbert Seely, Knoxville, called the meeting to order and Carl Carpenter, Woodhull, was chosen chairman. Mr. Seely set the theme for the meeting when he pointed out the advantages of management and association members discussing joint problems and answered questions.

Director Strawheck Ernest Strawheck, League Director, member of the executive committee and active in League affairs was the first speaker. He said in part: "You are part of the largest milk cooperative in the world. Many of our members do not know this, nor do they realize the difference between a cooperative and a corporation. You own the company, the stockholders are not the producers, the stockholders are the producers and are most interested in profits. There are 30,000 producers in your cooperative. You are all interested in keeping the market stable. The Dairymen's League was active in the passage of the Rogers-Allen Law, in the formation and continuance of the Bargaining Agency. There is need for some information center for you producers relative to milk activities. You here today, have been selected by your communities to bring back to them the products of discussion here today. I believe we are the most hated, most feared and most criticized organization in the New York milk shed. Maybe you disagree."

The speaker then answered questions relative to various phases of the League activities.

The group of 100 then adjourned to the Grange Hall for a luncheon served by the Grange ladies.

The afternoon session was addressed by Treasurer J. A. Coulter, who is also a director. He outlined the financial structure of the League, pointing out various aspects of the finances during the past years and of the excellent financial condition shown by the certificates due in 1941 are now being called in for payment.

Others at the meeting Tuesday were Ted Townsend, editor of the League News and Robert Eno, membership committee.

The closing session was held in the high school at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. The principal (Continued on Page 4)

Almon Tuttle Wins Action Against Sanford

Almon Tuttle of Woodhull was granted a judgement of $300 against Dr. Henry Sanford of Bath in an action tried before Judge John C. Wheeler at Corning Monday morning. Attorney Charles Salerno of Addison was attorney for Tuttle and Wilbur Knapp of Bath was attorney for Sanford.

The action was brought by Tuttle to recover $300 on a note for money loaned the defendant. Sanford denied he owed the money on the note his contention being that it was given pursuant to an alleged contract in which Tuttle was said to have agreed to educate Sanford's two children in college by payment of $100 a month for each child for a period of four years.

Motion was made by Tuttle through Attorney Salerno to strike out Sanford's defense and grant a judgement for Tuttle's action on the note. Motion was granted by Judge Wheeler. It was brought out at the trial that Tuttle took Sanford to the Elkhland Bank where he drew out the money and the Bath man executed the note.

THANKSGIVING THOUGHTS

Over the hills of Steuben County hangs the haze of fall, and in the air is that tang of early winter which tells us unmistakably that Thanksgiving is again at hand. To all except the most youthful mention of the name of this truly American religious holiday brings fully as much sadness as it does joy. For indelibly painted on every mind are pictures of the past—scenes of the yesterdays which can never be recovered—merry family circles gathered around festive Thanksgiving tables which are now shattered forever.

Could we but reconstruct those family circles, could we but bring back those smiling faces long gone, we would gladly give a king's ransom or forfeit the widow's mite as our circumstances permitted. Because time cannot be recalled, nor broken family circles rejoined, we are faced with the reality of this Thanksgiving Day sadness which creeps upon us like the realization that the carefree life of summer is being followed by the cold reality of winter in our lives as well as our seasons.

That is the price we pay for growing older.
Yet, the very fact we do pay this price and pay it more strongly than ever with our thoughts at this season, brings us closer to the Founding Fathers who first consecrated this custom. For Thanksgiving Day to them was not a merry holiday in which to seek a hilarious time. It was a day set apart to give thanks unto God for the Divine guidance which had accompanied them across dangerous seas to a land in which they could live in accordance with the dictates of conscience.

Can anyone imagine that group of Pilgrims felt no pang of sorrow over the past as they sat down to the primitive board and primitive meal which initiated our annual event? No indeed!
In the back of every mind as the group gathered, was the memory of scenes in another land. They were seeing friends and close relatives left behind that briny barrier, whom they would never see again on this earth. Even as they sent their prayers of thanksgiving to the Deity to serve Whom they had cut nearly all of life's ties, their hearts must have been saddened by the thought of broken family circles which could never be rejoined.

They gave all they had of the pleasures and comforts of life for the privilege of worshipping according to the manner their conscience dictated.
And in spite of the hardships, sickness and deaths that had visited the group accomplishing that almost impossible venture, they were thankful the main objective had been attained.

Are we truly thankful for the things which we have in life? Or are our feelings of thanksgiving overshadowed, blurred and obscured by the annoying little details of living which continually arise to make us forget the greater blessings? That is one thing we should take time to decide upon Thanksgiving Day. We have only to compare our lot with the misery of millions of hapless people in many lands to know that even the most unfortunate of us are extremely fortunate to enjoy life in this land.

Even though our careless living seems to belie the fact, we are still a Christian nation. Deep down under most cloaks of indifference is an inherent belief in God which might burst into the flame of religious fervor if anyone dared to abridge our privilege of worship. Thank God no one ever has in 150 years. That fact is made more important and real by the knowledge many countries we considered civilized three decades ago, have now taken away wholly or in part the right to worship.

If we will separate the chaff from the wheat, blow away the trivialities which annoy us and rightly assess our true blessings, then we will give heartfelt thanks this day to our Creator for manifold blessings.

FARMER-LABOR "COOPERATION"

Labor disorders in the New York milk shed seem to have caused both producers and consumers to do considerable thinking. The disorders were accompanied by rampant violence, and the property loss ran into the millions. It is reported that "strong arm" squads came from as far away as Ohio and Michigan.

This was something new to agriculture. The typical American farmer isn't used to taking orders, nor is he used to "persuasion" with guns and clubs. It is to the credit of the thoughtful farmers that they, along with their cooperative marketing organizations, fought the strike to a standstill, and wouldn't bow to terroristic dictation.

Leaders of the strike spoke feelingly of "farmer-labor" cooperation. And certainly the problems of the farmer and the workman are inseparable. But American agriculture isn't going to "cooperate" because of threats—and the cause of honest labor is always retarded, not advanced, by conscienceless violence.

IS "LITTLE BUSINESS" NEXT IN LINE?

The government already has its arm into "big business" up to the elbow. By making loans, by passing new regulatory legislation and, in some cases, by actually going into business and using tax subsidies and special privileges to undersell its private competitors, it has extended "state capitalism" on a considerable scale.

Now, if a new plan recently proposed is adopted, "little business" will also come under the wing of government to an unknown extent. This latest proposal comes from the Securities and Exchange Commission. It would establish a government-sponsored corporation to buy equity shares in small businesses, in order to avoid the expense attendant on floating security issues. "The simplicity of the proposed mechanism for making funds available to small business enterprises appeals to me," said the chairman of the Commission, and he added that he has urged the Senate Banking and Currency Committee to make a detailed study of the proposal, with a view to passing legislation at the next regular session of Congress.

The plan is simple, all right, and superficially it will doubtless exert a strong appeal to "little businessmen" who would like a pocket full of "free" government money. But, to the thoughtful, it is about as dangerous a law as could well be imagined. Whether or not its backers so intend, nothing could do more to achieve socialization of American business, small as well as large.

If government buys shares in a business, it must take an interest in the management of that business, in order to protect its investment. And government, even though it may not purchase a majority interest, is certain to become the "senior partner." You can trust the politicians to see to that. Wielding the tremendous power that the government's financial interest in business would give them, it wouldn't take long for our "public servants" to become "public masters." Business would be largely run by arbitrary rules prescribed at Washington—and businessmen would become figureheads.

"Little business" in this country is traditionally individualistic and independent. If it wants to keep that independence and individuality, it will avoid a "partnership with politicians" like the plague.

RANKING WE DON'T WANT

The United States has been catching up with the rest of the world, in more ways than one.

One way which is highly unpopular has been revealed in a comparative study of world taxation by the National Industrial Conference Board.
The sad truth is that where once the United States was the most lightly taxed of all the great nations, we now are right up in the higher brackets.

In 1928, it was reported, 12.3 per cent of our national income was collected as taxes, while the ratios in other countries ran: Canada, 14 per cent; Great Britain, 22.8 per cent; Germany, 19.1 per cent; France, 27.3 per cent; Italy, 18 per cent.

By 1938, our percentage of income going into taxes had climbed to 22.4 per cent, the board's survey showed. Other countries were listed this way: Canada, 20.7 per cent; Great Britain, 21.7 per cent; Germany, 26.2 per cent; France 23.3 per cent, and Italy about 21.5 per cent.

These figures were perhaps realigned in 1939, with the Allied countries turning new attention to rearmament. Government costs had gone up in all the countries over 25 years, with public debt climbing as well as taxation. What couldn't be paid for was being bought anyway, with the payment postponed to another generation.

Why did costs of government go up in all countries in the past quarter century? The board found that "war, depression, armaments and increased social services" caused the change.

The social services are, in great measure, desirable. As long as expenditures are kept within reason, few will argue against improving the lot of human beings who haven't quite found their niche in life.

The peculiar aspect of the figures is that the United States, with less of an armament burden, yet not solving its economic problems, has nevertheless caught up with the European nations in percentage of income going into taxes. There is a condition which the New Deal, full of experiments, cannot point to with pride. In spite of the quarterback's confidence, our team has been thrown for a loss.—Elmira Star-Gazette.

PARTNERS IN PROGRESS

America is and has been a nation of pioneers—pioneers who are willing to take a long chance in the hope of gain. Railroads were strung across barren wastes, settlers migrated westward, men gamble with billions on the strength of a dream.
They dreamed that the country they were building would some day become the greatest nation on earth. It was the American dream, and it came true.

A silent partner in that achievement was the local bank. Every undertaking of any size must have the aid of an established banking house.
Not a railroad could have been built, not a community founded, had not the banks first blazed a financial trail.

Accompanying the rapid progress which has taken place in this country, there have been fail-

THANK GOD, WE'RE AMERICANS!

Firemen are in need of new nozzles for the fire hose and I realize this need after seeing them work with antiquated equipment at a fire last week. With better equipment the fire could have been brought under control quicker. If some houses were to burn in this village there would be a great deal of damage. I believe the village board, in spite of economy should not stint the firemen on equipment.
And having had some plumbing experience, I believe that it is foolhardy to try to repair some of the old stuff, which may break down in a fire emergency.

The suggestion has been made that all organizations planning to give Christmas baskets send notices to those they intend to give to a central community agency so that communities will not receive four and five baskets as has been done in the past and other families, really in need, be denied. I'm heartily in sympathy with this idea and will do all I can to promote it. I know of families who have received more than their share.

Maybe there is something wrong in the way we prepare them, but the potatoes when mashed lately seem to stiffen up and do not stay creamy. Have you noticed it?

There are Republicans in Steuben County. I mean Steuben County, Indiana, for the Steuben Republican is the name of a 12-page paper published there each week. It was established one year before the Advertiser or in 1897, incidentally it costs $2 per year.

Thanksgiving will arrive Thursday, November 23. Radio jokesmiths have had a great time over the change in the date by Presidential decree and many states are still going to continue the last Thursday of the month which adds to the greater confusion. A couple were making a date and he said, "I'll see you Thanksgiving" and she replied, "Don't be so indefinite."

From time to time the Rambler writes something which displeases someone or some group. It is difficult in writing for print to please everyone. However, when someone does feel aggrieved, I wish they would tell me about it, for as I have said I would not deliberately hurt anyone. And people talking about me on the outside won't hurt me, for there is an old saying "sticks and stones may break my bones but names will never hurt me". So when you call me names remember it really does not hurt me. A prof I had used to say, "remember, they never talk about dead ones." Also quite good.

Time flies. It is three years since this column of weekly thoughts and observations came into being. During that time one subscriber stopped a paper on account of it and many have complimented the writer for various items.
Others have contributed items from ures, industrial, individual, civic. They were inevitable. For where there is utter safety there is no progress.

The banking system reflects the temper and character of the people and the nation they build. In the early days, the banks in some measure had to take chances the same as the scout with a six-gun at his hip. Time has proven, however, that the pioneer spirit in banking brought rich returns in community and national time to time. I appreciate the kicks as well as the boosts and thank all. When it was started, it was not believed it would be continued so long, nor that the column would appear weekly. But somehow it has survived. I do wish more people would contribute to it so that I could just sit down like the editor and edit the copy for it without having to write stuff like this to fill it each week.

Russ Wade went hunting with a fellow recently and was suddenly called to "see the huckleberries growing on a hemlock tree."

The Community calendar came into good use last week when it prevented two local organizations booking outside attractions on the same night. And admission charges were to be made to both events.
There are still some organizations booking events here without reference to the calendar and sometime will get caught in the confusion of conflicting events.

The meeting of dairymen being held in this community Tuesday the numbers present is an indication of the local interest in the dairy problem. Dairying is the chief source of income for Addison and vicinity and so we are really and truly interested in the farmer and his problems. This in spite of the fact some merchants do not seem to think so according to some of these farm products producers who spend their money here.

Something has got to be done to keep the drive way between the Laffas Store and Ricker Market open or some day someone is going to be sorry. That is an entrance way for fire apparatus to re to the rear of the main street buildings and when the time comes they cannot get there, we to that car-owner who has his car parked in that drive way.

MY BLESSINGS

I'm countin' up the blessings That've come to me this year.
How much I have to thank God for,
How little cause to fear.
I've had my eyes to see in many
The gorgeous things of earth.
My ears to hear the many sounds Of happiness and mirth.
I've had my hands to work with,
My feet to guide me thru The days and nights of toiling At the tasks God bade me do.

I've had health and strength of body,
With no pain or suffering keen, I've had the joy of going And many sights have seen.
Friends have been my choicest blessings, They've been both kind and true, By standing close beside me In the things I've tried to do.
My home has been my castle Where I could work and plan On making life worth living In the place just where I am.

I'm thankful for my country Where we're allowed to do The things we hold most sacred And worship God so true.
In this land of glorious freedom Where'er our flag floats high May we live to keep it spotless development.

Today the banks still accurately reflect the character of America. We have grown more conservative. The banks have done likewise. But just as in the old days, the banks are inseparable from the community and the demands of the community. When a community prospers, the bank prosper. When a community fails, the bank may also fail. The community and its financial ally progress or decline together.

LOOKING FORWARD

Ever since war broke out in Europe, the New Deal propaganda choir has sent up a chant that the re-election of President Roosevelt for a third term was inevitable. The American people, they said in effect, would now forget the failure of the New Deal, the maladministration of their government, the broken promises and general lowering of living standards in the last six years.

All these things, said the naïve New Dealers, the people would forget because their attention would be distracted by a war 4,000 miles away with which the United States has no direct concern. And so gladly were the New Dealers in promoting this contention that many persons, including some political writers, fell for it. Even some Republicans ruefully lamented what seemed to them a lucky break for the New Deal.

But now it is obvious that all this talk has been stuff and nonsense. It became obvious to all who could read on Election Day this month. The results of the elections held from the Atlantic to the Pacific indicated without any doubt that the tide of sentiment which set in against the New Deal a year ago was mounting higher at an accelerated pace. Let the propagandists, those who speculate on political trends and the straw vote polls, say what they will, there is no escaping the facts revealed in these elections.

Farley Hails Tammany Hall
The New Dealers have tried to explain away these election results.
Frowning Jim Farley, ignoring the remainder of the country, undertook to find joy in the fact that Tammany Hall scored a few victories in New York City. Victories by Tammany Hall may please Jim Farley but they must be gall to Franklin D. Roosevelt and the inner White House clique which a short time ago proposed banishing Tammany Hall to eternal darkness.

But even Jim Farley cannot find genuine pleasure in the New York City results—the only place where the Republicans failed to make gains. He must know that the candidates who went down to defeat were endorsed by Mayor Florello LaGuardia and that LaGuardia is much more a New Dealer than a Republican. He also must have heard of suggestions that, if Mr.
Roosevelt does not seek re-election Mr. LaGuardia be placed on the New Deal ticket next year for Vice President in order to assure victory in New York.

What strength can LaGuardia give the New Deal ticket when he cannot even bring about the election of police magistrates?

The Federal New Deal attitude toward the election results represented an effort to wave them aside as unimportant. They were just local elections and national policies were not involved, say the New Dealers. But national issues were injected into a number of these local elections and they were injected into them by the Republicans because they believe they have the best of such issues. This was true in Philadelphia, in New Jersey in upper New York State—indeed in most of the places where Republicans were elected.

Dutch Again Take Holland
But, says Mr. Peter Drewry, chairman of the Democratic National Congressional Committee, we carried Mississippi and Kentucky.
Yes, the Dutch again took Holland.
So did the Republicans carry Maine and Vermont in 1936—but that did not give them the election. The truth of the matter is that the Republicans have again captured those states essential to national victory.

This fact apparently worried Mr.
Drewry and he wanted to have a cheering word to say to his flagging followers. He pointed out that the Fourth Pennsylvania Congressional District was carried by a Democratic candidate by a margin of 4,000 votes. Jumping back to 1934, Mr. Drewry recalled that the Democratic candidate in that year won only by 375 votes.

Of course, Mr. Drewry's statement was the rankest sort of deception of his unsuspecting followers. Not a word did Mr. Drewry say about the election results in the Fourth Pennsylvania District in 1936 and 1938, even though Democrats won in those two years.
Why? For the simple reason that

As the years go passing by,
Yes, just for the joy of living, May I be thankful, Lord, I pray—And count my many blessings On this Thanksgiving Day.

comparison of this year's result with the two previous elections would have demonstrated what is happening to the Democratic Party.

How Democrats Lose Ground In 1934 a Democrat carried this district by 385 votes. In 1936 the Democrat won by a margin of 35,681 votes. In 1938 the Democratic majority was 9,171. This month it was 3,689 votes. There is the story and significance of this year's elections. It means the country is returning to its old political mood-ings and when that happens it spells the election of a Republican in the next succeeding Presidential election.

One major fact emerges from the elections held this month. It is that the American people have taken the European War in their stride. They have not permitted the smoke of that conflict to blind them to the necessity for making changes in government at home.
As the immortal Lincoln said, you cannot fool all the people all Europe.

Football Trophy Presented in Assembly Program—Other Features

Twelve are awarded letters by Coach Miller—Reflector staff members speak on Syracuse School Press Conference—Fire drill regulations given students.

Manager William Croft and 11 members of the Addison High football squad were awarded letters at an assembly held for high school and junior high students Friday morning. Principal Irving R. Gladstone announced school closing on Wednesday noon of Thanksgiving week. An unusual order of classes was undertaken with all morning being devoted to the usual afternoon classes.

William J. Miller of the faculty committee on fire drill regulations outlined some suggestions in case of fire drills. When students are marching from one class room to another and the fire alarm rings, grades one, two, three and four will go out the north door of the building as usual and any upper class girls at their lockers will leave by the same door. Fifth and sixth grades will leave by the south door as usual and anyone else in the south corridor. These regulations provide for those on the ground floor.

Second floor students will be regulated as follows: Students going down stairs will continue down and out the door by the girls' shower on the east side of the building, students going upstairs will reverse and go out the front door of the building. Those on the south side of the building will go out the 5th and 6th grade door. Mr. Miller advised against running and milling around.

Fire drills while assembly periods are being held will be treated as follows: Students on the right and left of the stage will march from the assembly as at present and those seated in the center will leave by the back doors of the assembly.

Those in the balcony will leave the building by the front doors. During the noon hours exit will be by the first grade door or front door of the building.

The Senior Class will have the Silver Knight for the next five weeks having won it in competition with other classes in attendance, honor roll numbers, Reflector sales and sale of football tickets. Seniors had the greatest number on the honor roll. Freshmen sold the largest number of Reflector and had more in attendance and Juniors sold the greatest number of football tickets. However, on points the Seniors won.

Miss Ida Hawell, faculty adviser to the Reflector staff presented members of the staff who spoke of their trip to the State Scholastic Press Conference at Syracuse University. Miss Gloria Vona outlined the general program in a humorous way and thanked the students for making the trip possible. She pointed out a better "Reflector" will be published as the result of the trip. Miss Dorothea Jones asked for suggestions for the "Suggestion Box" and then told of the social activities of the press conference. The general outline of press activities was given by Miss Frances Colburn.

Coach Miller then gave the football awards to James Crawford, Paul Thomson, Andrew Dominick, R. George, Harold Hargrave, John O'Connor, Homer Fritz, Richard Gladstone, Darrell Hopper, William Root and Louis Dominick. Cheerleaders led a cheer for the team. The silver cup awarded by the league was on display. Addison has won this for the past two years and has not been scored upon.

CHAPTER CHATTER

To the many favorable comments we have had concerning the material which appeared in last week's advertiser in our column we wish to state that this material was largely taken from a farm bureau service letter. It seemed to be of such general interest at this particular time that it was thought that it would be worth while to put it into the column in its original form rather than to re-write and impose our own impressions on the subjects discussed. Much of the statistical information given in these write-ups is taken from government reports. Most of this material has to be reduced to a readable form, however, where it is already written in column style we do not change it.

John Clifford, a senior in Cornell University visited the Agriculture Department last Tuesday. The purpose of this visit was to observe the local set-up in the Agriculture Department. Observation on teaching technique, discipline and other problems involved in teaching.

Mr. Clifford was accompanied by Professor Smith who spent most of the day at Jasper but visited our department the last period.

The agriculture IV class attended the Farm Bureau feeding school held in Bath last Wednesday. During the morning the discussion was given over to the construction of rations with special emphasis on using home-grown grains and roughages.

At noon the samples of hay, over 100 in number, were on exhibition. The boys in our class placed the samples according to which they believed was the best, the judging being based on color, leafiness, freedom from weeds, pliability and market value.

The afternoon session was conducted by Professor Crandall who emphasized summer feeding, feeding of dry cows, the use of good roughage and the keeping of a high per cent of butterfat. Each of these is discussed in detail in the following paragraphs.

Feeding Cows on Pasture
Most dairy cows are fed better during the winter than when they are on pasture. Only pastures that have been improved and properly managed will supply a cow with anywhere near the amount of nutrients she received off of roughage during the winter months.

The early part of the pasture season up until around the last of June will take care of a cow's needs to produce milk up to her inherited capacity. After this the pasture begins to get dry and the grass begins to lose some of its feeding value so the cows start to decline in their production.

Many farmers have too much faith in pastures. Especially late in the summer. Cows are allowed to run down in flesh hence they will produce less milk during the next lactation period. By providing sufficient nutrients on pasture we will increase our yearly production on milk and also keep the cows in good flesh for the fall months so that they will produce a satisfactory amount when prices are better.

To keep them from falling off they should be fed a supplement to help make up the deficiency of the pasture.

When or before they start falling off and lose in physical condition they should be fed good hay, silage or any green soiling crop as a supplement in addition to such amount of a grain mixture that will maintain the normal milk production.

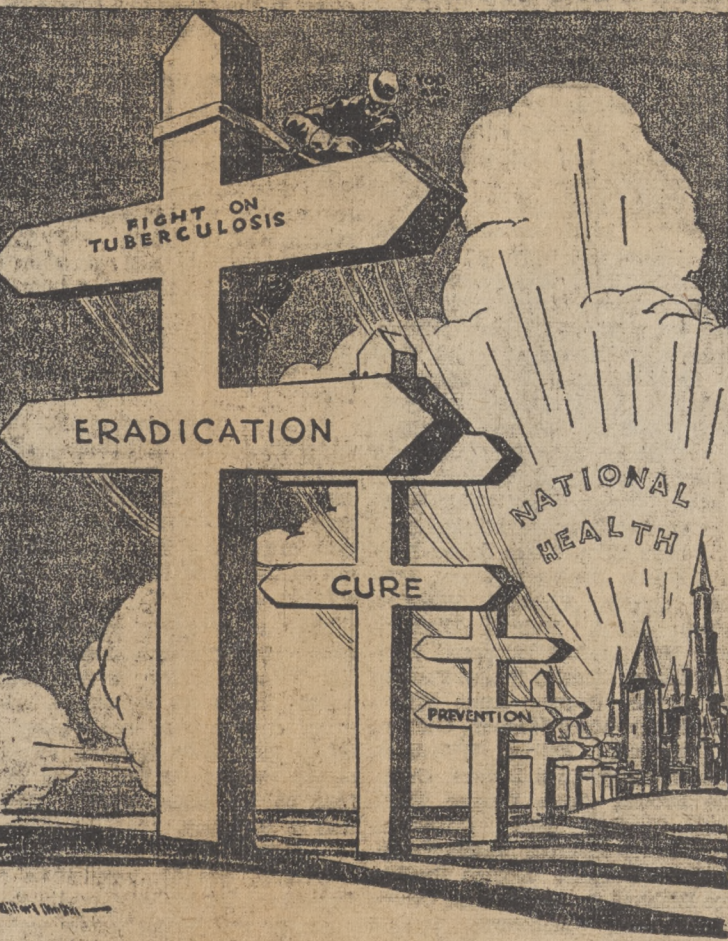

Feed for Butterfat
It is often asked if the per cent of butterfat can be raised by feeding. The per cent of butterfat varies and as the cow declines in milk her butterfat per cent will gradually come up. Tests will vary, depending on time of milking and the completeness of the milking.

A cow that is in good condition will test more than a cow in poor condition for a few weeks after freshening. Often a change in ration will cause a change in test. A change in the feeding system may do the same thing. If a cow is fed all the requirements necessary, the change should not make any change in the per cent of butterfat test. Some feeds may seem to raise the test but at present it is doubtful whether the feed will change the per cent of butterfat if cows are in good condition. If the cows are in good condition at freshening and are kept in good condition it is the tendency for the butterfat content to be higher.

Even though it is considered that the butterfat per cent cannot be raised by feeding one shouldn't forget that fat is important in the ration. Experiments have shown that when the fat content of feeds has become less than four per cent the milk and fat production both dropped greatly. It is important to have from four to seven per cent of fat in the ration.

The Dry Period
It is very important that we have

PUTTING THE LINE THROUGH

Red Cross Drive Underway As Workers Solicit

Our cows in good condition before freshening. Cows that are in good condition produce more milk, test higher and hold up better under heavy production longer. A good cow, even though fed well in heavy production, uses fat and minerals from her body. These minerals and fats have to be replaced in the cow's dry period or she takes the next year off to rebuild her body, which is very expensive.

This can partly be prevented by feeding plenty of good roughage, plus sufficient amounts of grain according to production. A six to eight weeks' dry period is recommended for most cows.

When the cow is dry it is the time to feed her well and get her ready for the next milking period. Grain, low in protein, can be fed during the dry period and the amount of grain fed is to be guided by the eye, rather than by a rule.

After the cow freshens, if in good condition she can maintain heavy production by using fat from her body till it is safe to feed her high protein feeds to carry on her production.

Roughage is important Every farmer should try to raise all the roughage that he can for the feeding of dairy cows. Nutrients normally cost less in home-grown roughages than in ready purchased grain mixtures.

The digestive system of a cow is well adapted to the use of large amounts of roughages and it is desirable to furnish a large amount of nutrients that a cow requires through the roughage.

Roughage will not take the place of concentrates altogether because roughage does not contain enough protein or total digestible nutrients to keep up milk production and to keep the cow's body in good repair.

Most high producing champion cows are fed mostly on good roughage because they can consume such large amounts of roughage they are cut down on concentrate.

Some champion cows have eaten as high as 60 to 70 pounds of roughage daily. Most feeders of these extra-ordinary cows are afraid to feed too much concentrates because of udder trouble, however, because of the wonderful consumption of roughage it is possible to get cows to produce over 35,000 pounds of milk yearly and still not injure the udder.

Feed Crops Report
Grain and roughages are plentiful over the whole United States. Parts of the United States have suffered a great roughage shortage this year and consequently many farmers have had to sell some of their cattle. Some farmers have cut all the hay and other roughages that they could get to carry them thru the winter. The corn crop in the United States is two per cent above last year and twelve per cent above the ten-year period. Flaxseed from which linseed is made is more than twice that of 1938. This is more than 50 per cent above the ten-year average. The cotton crop has dropped a little from that of last year. Cottonseed meal is a by-product of cotton seed which is very good for feeding but may cost more than linseed this coming year.

In general we can say that there is sufficient grain and roughage available in the country but the price may be high for those farmers who have to purchase both grain and roughage.

American Boy Magazine Companion to Thousands

Hundreds of thousands of boys and young men read THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine every month and consider it more as a living companion than as a magazine.

"It's as much a buddy to me as my neighborhood chum", writes one high school senior. "THE AMERICAN BOY seems to understand a boy's problems and considers them in such a sympathetic and helpful way. It gives advice and entertaining reading on every subject in which a young fellow is interested. It is particularly helpful in sports. I made our school baseball team because of playing tips I read in THE AMERICAN BOY."

Many famous athletes in all sports credit much of their success to helpful suggestions received from sports articles carried in THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine. Virtually every issue offers advice from a famous coach or player. Football, basketball, track, tennis, in fact every major sport is covered in fiction and fact articles.

Teachers, librarians, parents and leaders of boys clubs also recommend THE AMERICAN BOY enthusiastically. They have found that as a general rule regular readers of THE AMERICAN BOY advance more rapidly and develop more worthwhile characteristics than do boys who do not read it.

Trained writers and artists, famous coaches and athletes, explorers, scientists and men successful in business and industry join with an experienced staff to produce in THE AMERICAN BOY, the sort of reading matter boys like best.

THE AMERICAN BOY sells on most newsstands at 15¢ a copy. Subscription prices are $1.50 for one year or $3.00 for three years. Foreign rates 50¢ a year extra. To subscribe simply send your name, address and remittance direct to THE AMERICAN BOY, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Michigan

When did your ELECTRIC SERVICE begin?

Dinosaurs watched the beginning of your Electric Service.

In the large coastal swamps and slowly sinking inland basins of prehistoric times, a rank growth of plants struggled for existence. As they died, they fell beneath the water and were preserved there from complete decay.

In time, great thicknesses of this matter formed. Much of it—called peat—is used for fuel today, in countries less fortunate than ours. The older peat, at the bottom, was compressed by a later deposit and became the shining black rock we know as coal.

No doubt you've heard the story. But have you ever thought how that plant life of the dinosaur's time—preserved through millions of years—today is one of the first essentials necessary in the production of your Electric Service? It's a long thought.

That Nagging Backache

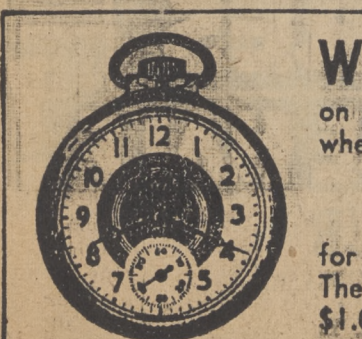

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—the risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become overtaxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, feeling as though the pains, swelling, feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

PNEUMONIA

Great effort, scientific and otherwise, is and has for many years been given to the cause and treatment of pneumonia, (inflammation of the lungs).

The first essential in caring for any disease, is, if possible, to determine the cause.

In tuberculosis there are two main factors in the cause. An hereditary or acquired predisposition and the presence of the germ. Neither one of these, alone, will produce the disease but the two, combined will do so.

In pneumonia, by analogy alone, it is only fair to assume the same logic.

Research laboratories have been more than busy in recent years in typing the germs found in a given case of pneumonia. The groups to date give 32 types. The laboratory girls are almost burning their eyes out in the effort to find the type in a given case.

That is scientific all right, but what about acquired predisposition? The answer to this is ACIDOSIS!

The treatment is simple. Give soda. A quarter to whole teaspoonful, according to age and strength of the patient, for five or six doses, four to six hours apart. Repeat this if necessary.

Report of a Typical Case Woman, age 50, been ill a few days, temperature 103½, pulse weak, coughing and raising bloody sputum, delirious. Looked doubtful if she lived until morning. Had trained nurse. Gave ¼ teaspoonful of soda, in 2 hours repeated the dose and ordered another dose at 4 A. M. and 8 A. M. Next morning temperature 101. Pulse good, delirium gone, asked for her breakfast. She was 75 per cent better in 12 hours.

Pneumonia terminates by so-called crisis. This may occur in 9 to 10 days. My belief is that the crisis occurs when the blood assumes its normal alkalinity.

Having such faith in the above belief, the medical profession and the laboratories are hereby challenged to disprove or correct them.

Government to Assist New York Farmers

Albany, Nov. 15 — New York State farmers whose hay and feed were destroyed by the drought are assured of some government assistance in meeting their feeding problems this winter, according to Commissioner Holton V. Noyes of the State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

Discussing a recent conference at Binghamton on plans for meeting the drought, emergency, Commissioner Noyes said:

"As a result of this conference we were advised that while no direct grants of money will be made by the government for the purchase of hay and feed, there is some money available from the Farm Credit Administration to loan for this purpose. This assistance is especially intended for those farmers unable to obtain help from their local banks or other loaning agencies. Interest will be at a reasonable rate and only reasonable security will be required by the government."

"The drought was particularly destructive in 11 counties of the State where hay and grain crops are reported as only 40 to 50 per cent normal. These counties which have been declared emergency areas are: Ulster, Steuben, Chenango, Tioga, Broome, Orange, Nassau, Suffolk, Otsego and Delaware."

"Farmers in these sections needing financial assistance of this kind should communicate with William E. Georgia, State Director, Farm Security Administration, First National Bank Building, Ithaca, or apply to their local county agricultural agents for advice as to the best course to pursue in their particular situation."

"Our Department is anxious to be helpful in any way that it can to assist farmers who are in the drought zone. As soon as the seriousness of the situation became apparent last August, I called the matter to the attention of Acting Governor Poletti with the suggestion that he request the President to authorize federal agencies to cooperate in meeting the emergency. Since that time, in cooperation with the Farm Bureau Federation and Farm Security Administration workers, we have explored every possibility of government assistance."

"We do not expect that even with this government help the situation will be completely under control. It will in many cases be most necessary for dairymen to go through their herds carefully and remove unprofitable animals, as well as to revise feeding practices in accordance with their reduced feed supplies."

Brief Blaze in Miller Home

A small amount of damage was caused by fire in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice E. Miller Monday. Mrs. Miller had kindled a fire in the fireplace and threw in a cardboard box which blazed up so furiously the flames shot out of the front door of the flue and ignited the yarn on the mantle. For a few seconds a major fire was threatened, but before Mrs. Miller reached the telephone the flames subsided so the fire company was not called out. The damage was confined to the mantle and fire screen.

"Training for Citizenship in a Democracy." Mrs. Alfred Watt of London, England, will address the audience as president of the Associated Country Women of the World.

Mr. King says that one of the most important phases of the annual session will be that of consideration of resolutions submitted by the delegates of the various County Farm Bureaus. He says that action on these resolutions submitted by the delegates determines state-wide Farm Bureau policy and many public questions relating to farming. Clayton G. White of Stow, N. Y., has been named chairman of the resolutions committee. Mr. White's committee will be in session in the Onondaga Hotel on November 27 and 28 to consider the resolutions submitted and to prepare a report to be presented to the delegates the afternoon of the 29th. Mr. King says that the annual meeting is not restricted to official delegates but that all who are interested in Farm Bureau work will be more than welcome at the annual session.

Oscar Dennis Of North Jasper Laid to Rest

Funeral services for Oscar R. Dennis, life long resident of North Jasper, were held from the family home Thursday afternoon. The Rev. Calvin DeGraw of Keeneyville officiated. He was assisted by the Rev. Mabel Johnson, pastor of North Jasper Church. Burial was in the Jasper Cemetery. The bearers were six young men, members of Banner Grange with which Mr. Dennis was prominently identified. Members of the Grange attended in a body.

The death of Mr. Dennis occurred November 13, 1939, at St. James Mercy Hospital, Hornell, where he had been removed just a day previously although in failing health for some time.

Oscar Ray Dennis was born May 15, 1882, the son of Andrew and Clara Croft Dennis, and his entire life was spent in the vicinity in which he was born. About 1902 he married Miss Effa Sherwood and to them were born three sons and two daughters. The death of Mrs. Dennis occurred in December, 1927. Some time later Mr. Dennis was united in marriage to Mrs. Nina Jones of Cameron.

The deceased was a prominent and highly respected resident of the community in which he lived. He was master of Banner Grange and had been re-elected to serve another year. The Grange had enjoyed a year of unusual success under his leadership and his passing is deplored by all with whom he came in contact.

Besides his widow he leaves to mourn his loss three sons and three daughters, Hazen Dennis, Geneva, Claire Dennis, Arkport; Lawrence Dennis, North Jasper; Mrs. Fannie Wood, Wellsville; Mrs. Gladys Brewer, Woodhull and Clara Mae at home; three step-children, Rodney, Ruth and Elwyn Jones and fourteen grandchildren; also two sisters, Mrs. Anna Seiber, Orlando, Fla., and Mrs. Belle Mulhollen, Lenix, Kansas.

Bull Groups Buy Junior Herd Sires

Richly bred purebred Holstein bull calves were bought in the past week by Steuben's cooperative bull associations in the vicinity of Howard and Lindley.

The Howard group of which S. H. Lyke & Son, Bert, Clair and George Bennett, I. J. Calkins, Kenneth Mattoon and George Clymo are members, bought Genodale Lady Boy, a ten-day old calf whose sire transmits high production as proven by his record; twenty-one daughters whose average production of 12,300 pounds of milk and 450 pounds of butterfat exceed that of their dams.

Uniform high production is characteristic of the ancestors of this calf as indicated by the fact that the maternal grand dam at eleven years of age has more than 100,000 pounds of milk to her credit and still is producing abundantly. As their future herd sire, Lewis Titus, Paul Bros. and J. E. Wagner of the Lindley-Caton Association, selected Ormsby Piebe Korndyke Calantha, a yearling bull whose grand sire, Royal Calantha Wayne on the dam's side, is one of the great living proven sires of the Holstein breed. High butterfat test is characteristic of the pedigree of young Ormsby.

Principal advantage of the cooperative ownership of bulls is that each sire can be tried out on several herds, kept until the production of his daughters can be compared to their dams, and thus prove the transmitting ability of the sire.

Whitesville—An epidemic of broken water mains struck here last week and seriously crippled things in the village.

Canisteo—George B. Gibbons and Co., purchased the water bonds of this village for $96,000.

Uniform Price of $2.27 for October Milk is Announced

New York, Nov. 20—E. M. Harmon, administrator of the Federal-State orders regulating the handling of milk in the New York metropolitan marketing area, today announced a uniform price of $2.27 per hundredweight for 3.5 per cent butterfat content milk received from producers during the month of October at handlers' plants in the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

This price is 48 cents per hundredweight higher than the uniform price announced for September milk. In September, however, producers were due to receive an additional 20 1/2 cents per hundredweight known as the "premium fund." This "premium" represented the amount by which the uniform price was increased as the result of the higher prices dealers agreed to pay producers on four classes of milk beginning August 25, following a conference called by Mayor F. H. La Guardia. Consequently, the total payment due to producers for September milk was $2.08 1/2.

The October price announced today by Mr. Harmon and required by State and Federal Orders to be paid by handlers to producers is 18 1/2 cents higher than the combined Order and agreed upon premiums for September. The most important factor in bringing about this increase was the fact that Class I price was increased 22 cents per hundredweight by amendment to the marketing orders on October 1. Also, 58 per cent of the total milk was reported as having been used in Class I for October as compared with 57 per cent used for Class I for September. Another factor is that the uniform produce price for October includes about three cents per hundredweight of milk, representing funds collected from handlers on past due accounts, whereas for September there was only about half a cent more per hundredweight to add.

The October uniform price of $2.27 under the Federal-State orders is based on a Class I, or fluid milk, price of $2.82 per hundredweight, a Class II-A, or fluid cream price of $1.90 per hundredweight and the following prices for each of the remaining seven classes of milk which represent the value of milk used for various manufactured products: Class II-B milk, $1.210 per hundredweight; Class III-A milk, $1.519; Class III-B milk, $1.55; Class III-C milk, $1.15; Class III-D milk, $1.123; Class IV-A milk, $1.05, and Class IV-B milk $1.22.

Producers delivering milk to plants located in zones nearer or farther than the 201-210 mile zone from New York City will receive from handlers the uniform price plus, or minus differentials for location. Differentials, for butterfat content above or below 3.5 per cent are also required to be accounted for by handlers in their payments to producers.

Approximately 61,000 farmers in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Vermont produced the milk during September which will be paid for by handlers under the terms of the Federal-State orders regulating the handling of milk in the New York metropolitan marketing area. The orders establish minimum prices for producers only. Prices at which consumers buy their milk are left to the forces of competition in the market.

Annual Fish and Game Club Banquet Tuesday Night Here

William McCarthy and Llewellyn Robbins are honor guests on this occasion for work they have done in club's behalf—Chicken on the menu—Conservation Department to provide speaker.

The annual banquet of the Addison Fish and Game Club will be held Tuesday night in Odd Fellows Temple. Members of the Addison Rebekeah Lodge will serve the supper at 6:30 o'clock. Chicken will be the chief item on the menu with trimmings appropriate to the dinner.

The dinner will be in the nature of a testimonial to William McCarthy, past president and charter member of the club and to Llewellyn Robbins, also a past president and charter member.

Mr. McCarthy is donor of the field upon which the club is now located and throughout the years since the formation of the organization has donated time, wood and personal services to make the success of the club assured. He has been one of the most enthusiastic workers for the success of conservation in the southern part of Steuben County. In addition he has raised the pheasants sent here by the State Conservation Department and has had a lower mortality rate among the young birds than any grower in the county.

Mr. Robbins has been the ideas man of the club for he was one of those behind the movement to erect a club house after the club was formed and worked at the field with hammer and saw to construct the building and just recently engineered a project for the erection of a kitchen there. He has long been active in conservation and in addition is an ardent hunter and fisherman.

President Vernon Adsit will preside as toastmaster at this dinner. Reservations are being made for 100 by the members for tickets sales are being limited to members and wives and invited guests.

In addition to the toasts to the honor guests there will be motion pictures of wild life and conservation clubs. The State Conservation Department is also sending a capable speaker to give the members a talk on phases of conservation of wild life.

This promises to be one of the outstanding banquets in the long series which have been held since the formation of the Addison Fish and Game Club.

Warden Ray S. Reed, long active in this club and one of those instrumental in the founding of the club will be present.
